

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE 101

Domestic violence isn't just a private matter—it's a public health priority. The Women's Center of Montgomery County invites you to a comprehensive training session tailored for the non-profit and human services sector. We will move beyond the basics to explore the "why" behind the myths, the red flags of strangulation, and the legal protections available to survivors.

Equip your team with the knowledge to support the 10 million people affected by DV each year. Join us to turn awareness into action and help dismantle the cycle of violence in our community.

Tuesday, April 28

10:00-11:30 am

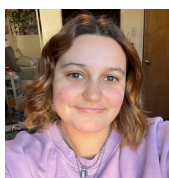

Zoom

REGISTER NOW

CEU Eligible

Nicole Gablein

Community Education Specialist,
Women's Center of Montgomery County

Nicole is a Community Education Specialist with the Women's Center of Montgomery County. She holds a bachelors of arts in Psychological and Social Sciences with a minor in Sociology from Penn State Abington. She has worked in victim services for a year and a half, interning at Northeast Victim Services in Philadelphia before coming to the Women's Center. Over the last year her and the community education team trained 7,000 individuals in Montgomery County, PA, ranging from preschool age to the elderly community. She is extremely passionate about community education and providing individuals with the resources and knowledge to better the community.